1.Offered here is stunning classic 1959 CHEVY Viking-50 configured as a farm / cattle truck. Stored inside for most of its life. Only 1 previous owner, which was the Bayview Farm in Dover, NH, which is stenciled on the vehicle. The owner of that farm, Ted Valpey, Jr., was an icon in the New England antique truck field until he passed away in 2023. This was his truck. The truck is almost all original, except for the newer paint. Is registered with the American Truck Historical Society. Showing 32,391 original miles. Straight-6 engine. Originally it had a 6-volt system, has been upgraded to a 12-volt system. Was running great up until recently. The mechanic suggests stale gasoline.

2. 2003 Chevy C4500 2-wheel drive cab & chassis. Powered by a Duramax LB-7 6.6-litre diesel engine. Showing 158,600 miles. Chassis configured with an 11-foot Switch-N-Go truck hoist system with a WARN Industrial Series-15 15,000-lb. electric winch. "The interchangeable truck body system that allows for one truck to always have the body that suits the job". Fully wired plow set-up (plow not included). Runs well. Well maintained, has newer brake lines, rear calipers, fuel injectors, etc. Does, however, need a pump for the rear fuel tank. Most recently has been being used as a roll-off dumpster / container truck. As we all know, the roll-off dumpster business is hot ! Being sold equipped with a flatbed system which is easy removed.

4.2007 GMC C4500 cab & chassis 2-wheel-drive 2-ton truck. Powered by 8.1-litre V-8 gas motor. Showing 78,173 miles. Configured with a 16-foot flatbed stake body. Runs well. Has a few issues, though. The lift-gate on the rear of the truck has been sheared off. We have the gate, but it must be reattached. Also, please note the small damage to the front headlight assembly.

5.2007 JLG rough terrain scissor-lift, Model 3394RT. Older model that runs great, recently fully serviced. Max 33-foot platform height. 2,250-lb. load capacity. Ideal for construction or maintenance tasks. Drives smooth. Scissor raises & lowers smoothly. Propane tank is leased and not included in the sale.
